

TOMIKI AIKIDO OF THE AMERICAS

Kyu-level Curriculum

(Updated as of May 1, 2017)

Professor Tomiki analyzed thousands of traditional aikido and aiki-jutsu techniques (traditional aikido had 2,664 techniques) and then distilled them down into, ultimately, the basic 17 techniques (junanahon) that could be done effectively, and safely, in a randori (free-style / sparring exercise) setting. He also gave these techniques common-sense names that described the techniques themselves, rather than simply giving them a number as in traditional aikido (e.g., ikkyo, nikkyo, etc.), and developed a logical curriculum that fosters faster learning. We have translated the Japanese terminology below to help your understanding, but please note that sometimes Japanese does not translate easily into English.

The junanahon are divided into two general categories: the ate-mi-waza (striking techniques) and the kansetsu-waza (joint techniques). The kansetsu-waza are then divided into three sub-categories: hiji-waza (elbow techniques), tekubi-waza (wrist techniques) and uki-waza (“floating” or “timing” techniques).

5th kyu (yellow belt)(40 hours of practice or more)

-Basic warm-up

-Unsoku (footwork)

-Tegatana dosa (hand-sword exercises)

-Back falls (kouhou ukemi)

-Side falls (yoko ukemi)

-Front roll (zenpo ukemi)

-Knee walk (shikko)

-Ate-mi-waza – the first five “striking” techniques of the junanahon (17 basic techniques), both right and left, from a tegatana vs. tegatana stance:

- 1) Shomen-ate (frontal attack)
- 2) Aigamae-ate (matching stance attack)
- 3) Gyakugamae-ate (opposite stance attack)
- 4) Gedan-ate (low-level attack)
- 5) Ushiro-ate (back attack)

-Kihon tsukuri (basic training exercise) against a standing opponent using the five ate-mi-waza

-Taisabaki (evasion exercise)

-Tegatana taisabaki (evasion exercise using the hand-sword)

4th kyu (orange belt)(more than 40 hours of practice after 5th kyu)

-All of the above

- 1) Oshi-taoshi (elbow push-over)
- 2) Ude-gaeshi (arm-elbow turn lock-up)
- 3) Hiki-taoshi (elbow pull-down)
- 4) Ude-garami (elbow wheel-throw)
- 5) Wakigatame (armpit lock-up)

-Flying forward roll (zenpo kaiten ukemi)(subject to physical capability)

-Kihon tsukuri, as per the above, but now against a jumping opponent

-Suwari-waza shomen-uchi (sitting techniques against a forehead strike) – oshi-taoshi osae (elbow push-over with a pin), both left and right, front and back (4 techniques in total)

-Taisabaki (evasion exercise)

-Tegatana taisabaki (evasion exercise using the hand-sword)

-Kakari-geiko (first level of randori, free-style exercise / sparring, where the attacker does not resist)

3rd kyu (green belt)(more than 40 hours of practice after 4th kyu)

-All of the above

- 1) Kote-hineri (wrist twist)
- 2) Kote-gaeshi (wrist turn)
- 3) Tenkai-kotehineri (turning-body wrist twist)
- 4) Tenkai-kotegaeshi (turning-body wrist turn)

-Suwari-waza shomen-uchi (sitting techniques against a forehead strike) – oshitaoshi (elbow push-over) with a kote-mawashi (back of the hand) wrist pin

-Nanahon-nage waza (7 breaking balance moves at high level (jodan), mid-level (chudan) and low (gedan) level, plus double hand grab from behind) – just the throws

-Hikitate (second level of randori, free-style exercise / sparring, where the attacker falls if the technique is done properly)

-Randori training exercises:

- 1) Shomen-ate timing against knife (tanto) strike
- 2) Catching and controlling the elbow on the outside, i.e. into jodan oshitaoshi

2nd kyu (blue belt)(more than 60 hours of practice after 3rd kyu)

-All of the above

-Uki waza (“floating” or “timing” techniques), both right and left, from a teगतana vs. teगतana stance:

- 1) Mae-otoshi (front throw-down against the elbow)
- 2) Sumi-otoshi (corner throw-down)
- 3) Hiki-otoshi (pulling throw-down against the elbow)

-Suwari-waza shomen-uchi (sitting techniques against a forehead strike) – oshitaoshi juntedori kotehineri osae (elbow push-over with a wrist-twist pin)

-Nanahan-nage waza (7 breaking balance moves at high level, mid-level and low level, plus double hand grab from behind) – adding techniques after the kuzushi

- Atemi-waza against grabs (total of 10 techniques, demonstrated on both left and right side, i.e. 20 techniques in the entirety)

-Randori training exercises:

1) Sumi-otoshi

2) Waki-gatame

-Randori (third level of randori, free-style exercise / sparring, where the attacker resists the technique but without resisting so hard as to injure himself)

1st kyu (brown belt)(60 hours practice after 2nd kyu)

-All of the above

-Suwari-waza shomen-uchi (sitting techniques against a forehead strike) – oshitaoshi with a kime (pressure point) lock

-Juppon ura-waza (10 counter-techniques)

1. Shomen-ate into a waki-gatame
2. Aigamae-ate into kote-mawashi oshi-taoshi
3. Gyakugame-ate into gedan-ate
4. Gedan-ate into aigamae-ate
5. Ushiro-ate into tenkai kote-hineri
6. Oshi-taoshi into kote-mawashi oshi-taoshi
7. Hiki-taoshi into tenkai kote-hineri
8. Kote-gaeshi into kote-gaeshi
9. Tenkai-kotehineri into waki-gatame
10. Tenkai kote-gaeshi (shihonage) into tenkai kote-gaeshi

-Junte-dori (natural-hand grab) and gyakute-dori (reverse hand) grabs, high and low, both sides

-Ninin-dori, multiple unarmed attackers

-At least two matches of randori
